Notes

From obs: "Skied Mount Blackmore today. Saw a natural avalanche on Alex Lowe peak just south of the Hellmouth,..."

Other group's obs: "I and one friend observed the remains of a natural avalanche below the north facing headwall up Flanders creek. It looked as if it happened within the past few days. I didn't get close enough to really gauge the size in width but it propagated at the ground. The crown looked to be 3'-4' deep..."
